

Designs Lean on the Past

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The individual who likes to live with yesterday's furniture today should be in seventh heaven this spring.

The major trend of home furnishings designs reflects designers' many walks through museums and restored villages such as colonial Williamsburg, Va., or the Ford Museum, Dearborn Village in Michigan.

Top of the line producers and style leaders such as Henredon, Baker, Drexel and Kittinger leaned heavily upon the 17th century English, 18th century English and American and 19th century English and Italian designs to whet the appetites of retailers to buy during the recent market here. These new designs will be in stores this spring.

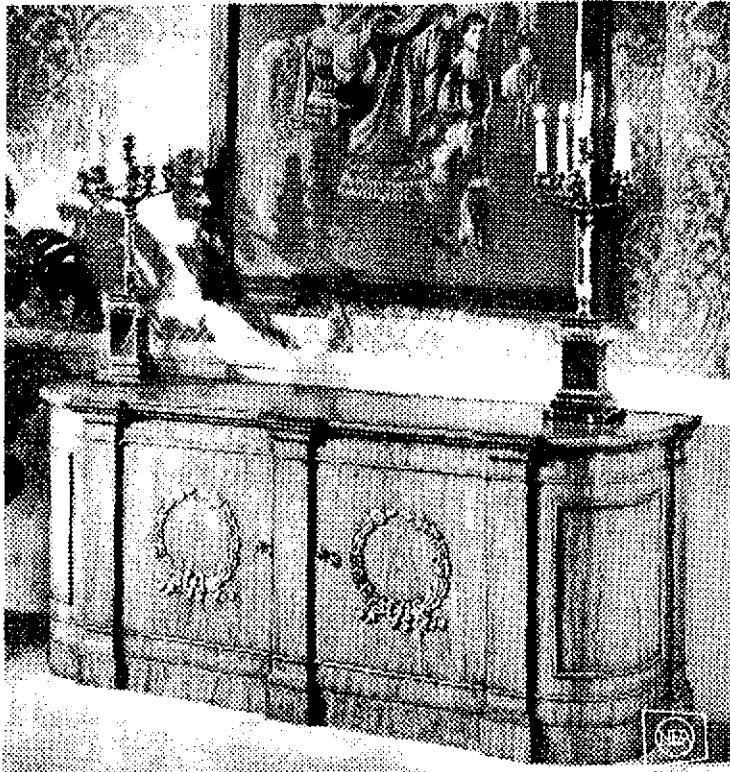

Although the furniture designs rely on classic motifs, the prices will keep pace with 20th century wage and material increases.

Nathan S. Ancell, president of Baumritter Corp., predicted a three to five per cent move upward of prices in the first six to eight months of 1966. Even with a price rise the manufacturers and retailers expect to get a larger share this year of the $490 billion consumer disposable income than last year.

Veteran observers admit that the industry has dragged its feet in this department in the last decade. One reason for optimism is the growth of household formations by almost 1.5 million in 1966. Among these will be the young marrieds, especially the thousands of teen-agers who enter the home furnishings market with money to spend for the first time.

In spite of these youths leaning to contemporary, most shoppers will need to brush up on latter-day designs. The heavy stress on anything English has been attributed to such things as more education, growing good taste, more money to spend for better quality items and the movie, "Tom Jones."

According to a spokesman for Burlington Industries, which introduced an English-oriented museum collection within the last three years,

Furniture designs that bridge the furniture trends this season combine in the "continental classic" sideboard shown above. By Thomasville, it is from a collection which uses pilasters, pediments, fluted columns and classic molding so the pieces fit properly with Renaissance, 18th and 19th century French and Italian furniture. Wood is a medium brown tone of walnut veneer.

"There is a reverence for antiquity. The life of the English square certainly appeals to Americans."

Designs in the 18th century vein, both American and English, lean heavily upon Queen Anne, Early Georgian and post-Revolutionary French.

Woods are mahogany, walnut, maple and oak with primarily dark finishes. In the 17th century vein are pieces of Gothic, Tudor or Jacobean persuasion showing such things as arches, trefoil and quatrefoil trims and linenfold paneling. The scale appears to be large and sturdy. In line with this is the 19th century represented by English Regency and the Italian Villa styles. The latter features reeding, brass appliques, rosettes and much bamboo.

With more persons becoming apartment dwellers, the question of size pops up immediately. Designers hastily point out the units are not as massive as they seem and furthermore the great emphasis is on storage such as in armoires that are to serve as

Home Fix-up Poses Buying Problem

Spring clean-up and fix-up time is near.

The shift in recent years from the traditional lumberyard to the building supply "supermarket" poses many shopping questions.

Facing a consumer are more than 12,000 items in a builder's supply store. This huge inventory, it seems, is one safeguard for the consumer, according to a man who for 19 years has been prying into the operation and problems of the industry.

Harold J. Sugarman, publisher of Building Supply News, a business magazine for the building industry, says there are few fly-by-night operators of building supply stores. The investment is too high for them to "fold their tents and steal away," he explains.

The 1950s saw the rise of the suede shoe operator, a real con man who hooked many with his door-to-door selling of home improvement items. His counterpart still tries. In fact, the National

Better Business Bureau recently issued its spring warning to consumers to avoid the fast-buck boys who approach home owners with "something-for-nothing" offers, "demonstration house or model room deals," or a "good buy on left-over materials."

Sugarman says the majority of the 28,000 building supply firms in the United States are reputable. The dealers are "in business to stay in the community and cannot afford a reputation of selling shoddy merchandise or doing shoddy work."

The consumer, though, runs a risk when comparison shopping in building supply stores. Sugarman says. The consumer may be tempted or led by ads or a salesman to buy something "equal to" another product. For example, he may buy synthetic board with a knotty pine design done by photosynthesis rather than actual knotty pine. Then, if he is unhappy with the results, he blames the dealer who sold it to him. Such a move leads Sugarman to say, "You get what you pay for." He also believes that certain imported items such as nails are inferior to those made in the United States. Government regulations help keep quality standards up in such items, he says.

Because of volume, a dealer can offer specials on products by cutting his total profits on an item during a sale and still not lose money. It is up to the consumer to be more selective when buying merchandise on sale, he feels.

In comparing prices on the same item advertised by competitive building supply stores, evaluate the stores. Sugarman says. One may be a cash-and-carry operation and the other provide services such as delivery and financing.

The cash-and-carry operation can offer a price 15 to 20 per cent lower on the same merchandise because of lower overhead. However, price alone is not the criterion, Sugarman warns, and a consumer should be certain he is paying the lower price for the same merchandise he scouted in the more expensive supply store. If installation is involved, a consumer also should be honest with himself and consider how much it will cost to hire a carpenter or plumber to install the "discount" item.

Young Originals

B-81 10-20

All-Seasons Favorite

HERE'S A PERENNIAL basic that will see you through many occasions. The shaped bodice and the A-line skirt are slimming. The roll collar makes a soft frame for your face. You can make this design in a number of ways—with or without the peplum, short or ¾-sleeves, or, as pictured here, sleeveless. An accompanying Co-ordinator tells you how and suggests a variety of fabrics and accessories that are suitable. Every Young Original pattern also provides a photo-guide to help you achieve that professional finish.

B-81 is for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20. Bust 31 to 40. Size 12, 32 bust, sleeveless, with collar, 2½ yards 45-inch.

Send $1 for this pattern to: YOUNG ORIGINALS (name of newspaper), P.O. Box 438A, Midtown Station, New York, N.Y. 10018. Print your full name, address, with zip code, pattern number and size. Add 25c for first-class handling.

Start Easter Sewing Now

by Mary Brooks Picken
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Forty-one million women in the United States sew. Are you one of them? If not, why not become a part of this group which puts its ingenuity to work to achieve fashion for little money?

Fabrics are beautiful. You can buy materials for a dress for one-fourth, even less, of the cost of a ready-made dress.

You can have the texture, color, trimmings all to your liking when you make your clothes yourself.

If you can read instructions for a cake mix, you can make a dress. Buy the fabric prescribed; read the pattern instructions and proceed to do exactly as they tell you in the instruction sheet.

If you are in doubt about the size pattern you should buy, then measure your bust, waist and hips and order accordingly. Check the length of the pattern, shoulder to bottom of hem, plus hem, so you do not waste fabric by cutting your dress too long.

We are without any doubt in the short skirt period. You yourself must decide how short you will wear yours. There is a point where the short skirt is smart and a point where it becomes absurd.

Look at the trimming counter for embroidery, the no-iron kind, for braids and laces. There is a feminine look coming into even the shifts that is wholly desirable.

What could possibly be easier to make than a shift or an A-line skirt with a shell overblouse. Make two shells for each skirt. This way you have a change and a different look.

With shells as with shifts, fitted facings are important. Your pattern provides for these.

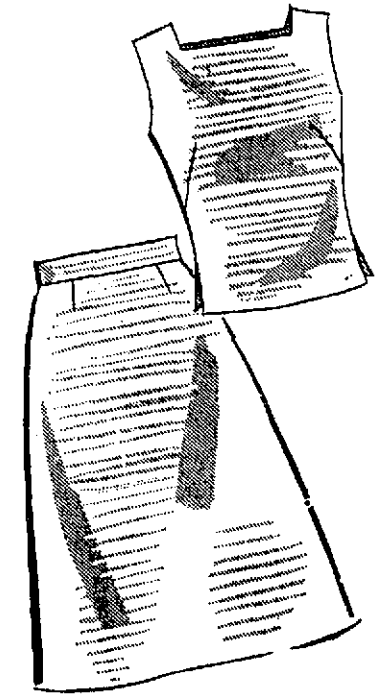

Darts must be clipped and pressed open so as to "set smooth" on the figure.

The shorter skirts call for deeper hems, 2½ to 2¾ inches. Many of the deeper hems are notched, machine-stitched just below the notched edge then slip-stitched to place with easy stitches so that none show on the right side. Catch your overcast stitch in the machine stitch then to one thread of the fabric. Remember "easy does it"—never use a tight stitch.

Many prefer to omit waistbands on skirts and finish the top with flat bias binding or ribbon. This does help to make the waistline look smaller.

If you are using braid, embroidery or lace on an edge ease it on so that it cannot possibly be tight, especially after washing.

Now is the time to sew for spring and summer or to get ready for Easter. Do your sewing while you can enjoy it, can take time to do beautiful work and to achieve the custom-made look that is so completely desirable.

The Gernreich Flare In Spring Fashions

Always new, fresh and bright are the designs created by the talented Rudi Gernreich. Red and white cotton batiste (flag print shirt) (left) is shown with red and white plaid pique skirt worn with red tights and white patent slippers. Empire dinner dress (right) is in a triangle satin print in silver and white. This is worn with silver stockings and white patent slippers.

LEFT OUT—A kitchen sink was exhibit "A" for Reps Frances Bolton and William H. Ayres, both of Ohio, in protesting "absurdities" which showed up in construction of Washington's new Rayburn House Office Building. Office suites in the $88.9 million building have kitchens without sinks and bathrooms without towel racks.

Smooth on Eye Shadow

To apply eye shadow, half close the eye you are working on. Blend shadow over the lower half of your eyelid, from corner toward the temple. Use your fingertip to smooth the color out into the surrounding area. It should fade out to nothing at the outer corner of the eye. You may prefer to use a pressed powder eye shadow or the fluid type applied with a brush and quite waterproof.

Need Vivid Eye Make-up

Women who wear glasses may need more eye make-up than those who don't. The reflection on the lenses tend to obscure the eyes. Use more vivid eye make-up to compensate for this.

Oral Hygiene is Essential

Proper oral hygiene is considered an essential in good grooming. Women, who once chewed parsley leaves to freshen the breath, now account for a high percentage of the $169 million spent for mouthwashes.

Need for Other Counsel

by Mrs. Muriel Lawrence, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My lovely child of 19 has been swept off her feet by a man nearly twice her age. I can't even talk to her about delaying marriage until she knows him better without her getting hysterical and crying, "Oh, mother, leave me alone, leave me alone!"

I am so confused. My own marriage to her father ended in divorce because I rushed into it, and I have tried so hard to prepare her for a happier life than mine has been. If you could...

ANSWER: It's very hard for her to trust your sexual counsel.

But it may be even harder for you to realize this. That's because, as mothers who have failed as wives, we tend to take special pride in our closeness to the child. Without knowing it, we may have even made a resolve to be the most loved, most trusted mother in the world. We do this as proof of our loveliness to the man who wounded us as well as to our own self-doubting selves.

So, to realize that the child we wanted to mother so perfectly regards us as an unreliable guide to sexual happiness—that very area of our own lives in which we are most unsure of ourselves—can be very painful indeed.

We may just not be up to the knowledge that our own failure still haunts our relationship to the child in spite of all our efforts to atone for it. Yet it may be that in this knowledge lies the answer to this breakdown of talk between you and your daughter.

The moment it's possible to acknowledge that our old failure HAS made us into an unreliable guide, we can put the child's distrust of us into words for her and can suggest a reliable guide. We can say:

"I can understand why you have to count me out as a person to trust with this problem. It hurts me a little but not more than I can stand. But the fact that you can't talk to me about your feelings for Jim doesn't mean you can't talk to anyone about them. What about talking to a psychiatrist about them—a man? You haven't had a father around to take your trouble to, so the idea of talking to a kind, father-like man you can truly trust may not have occurred to you. Yet talking to such a man may be exactly what you want more than anything else in the world right now."

Somewhere psychoanalyst Dr. Karen Horney wrote, "Pride is always the enemy of love." And so it is. It's the special enemy of women whose sexual pride, wounded by divorce, has re-rallied itself in the form of pride in motherhood.

One Blonde With Misgivings

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Is it true blondes have more fun? It depends on the blonde, obviously, for who could be blonder (or prettier) than Dorothy Provine? And she isn't 100 per cent happy about her blondness.

"Why is it," she complains, "that they always think blondes are foolish and giddy? Whenever a sensitive or dramatic part comes along, it goes to a brunette. Very unfair."

And Dorothy is much closer to sensitivity than to foolishness.

She's shy— "Only in acting a part can a shy person come out of it and do things she would never do in real life."

And she's proud— "I might have been married now if I had answered the phone once. But my pride wouldn't let me. We had had an argument, so I didn't. If I had, it might have changed my life."

And she's introspective— "I'm always depressed when I'm in a comedy. I guess it's because I have to suppress my hostility for the part. And hostility has to come out sometime."

But foolish and giddy? Never. (Well, hardly ever.)

Astrology has many believers in Hollywood. Among them is Debbie Reynolds, who believes in the relationship between a person's sign and his personality.

"I'm an Aries," she says. "We're strong-willed. My husband, Harry, is Pisces—not stubborn, very calm and reasonable. My first husband, Eddie, was a Leo and he was a typical Leo—he had to be the boss of the house."

"I didn't know he was a Leo before we got married. Aries and Leo is a bad combination."

THE PSYCHIC STARS: Wayne Newton

Wayne Newton was walking down the street in Las Vegas, with his brother and a friend. A woman—and none of the three had ever seen her before—came up to Wayne and said, "You don't know me, do you?"

The singer said no, but he quickly rattled off her name and where she was from and how she was related to someone he knew. "It just came to me," he says.

Dick Clark, who moved here two years ago, is working both sides of Sunset Boulevard. He's acting—features and television guest shots, and he has turned down four firm offers for series roles—and he's producing—American Bandstand and Where the Action Is and has a dozen other shows in various stages of development.

I've known Dick for years and he still looks as youthful as ever. But Dick is beginning to realize that the years have rolled along.

"Every time I get on an airplane," Dick says, "the stewardess is certain to say, 'Aren't you Dick Clark? Gee, when I was a little girl I watched you every day.' It never fails."

Getting older never fails, either.

Dedicated New Yorker Elizabeth Allen bought some property at Lake Arrowhead, a resort area not far from Los Angeles.

"There's nothing on it but pine trees," she says. "Whenever I'm here, I drive up and walk around and count my pine trees. And it's funny—I never even had a garden before."

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Variety programs are such routine television items - there is one just about every night in the week - that they are hardly treats any more.

Neither, alas, are appearances by the few dozen stars who, without shows of their own, travel a profitable circuit from Ed Sullivan to Andy Williams, from Dean Martin to the Hollywood Palace and then start all over again.

Harry Belafonte, while no stranger to television, has never traveled this dreary road. As a consequence, when he visits the nation's living rooms, it is something of an occasion.

Thus his next appearance - on CBS Monday night - is something out of the ordinary - a book show called "The Strolling 20s," in which Belafonte is only an incidental performer. Stars will be Sidney Poitier - a real TV stranger - Diahann Carroll, Sammy Davis, Duke Ellington and Nipsey Russell, among others. The show was written by Langston Hughes.

Belafonte said: "We're showing Harlem in the period of the black renaissance," he said. It was the Harlem of Countee Cullen and Langston Hughes of the Duke and Jimmy Luceford, of the Charleston and the Lindy Hop at the Savoy, and of Bert Williams.

"But it is not one of those show biz things or a theatrical recap. We're going to try to show some of the fine things as well as the stench of ghetto life, some of its fun and pain."

Belafonte said he was born in Harlem in 1927, the time his show will recreate.

Two Killed in Collision

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Two persons were killed and five children injured Thursday when a station wagon and pickup truck collided at an intersection in western Little Rock.

WIN AT BRIDGE

No Argument Beats Winning

By JACOBY & SON
1985 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Bridge Set, published by the San Fernando Valley Unit of California, continues to come up with hands by Eddie Kantar that are worth further publication.

This time Kantar writes on deceptive play by declarer. In his first example South arrives at very poor five-club contract. He doesn't show the bidding so we will assume it went as we have it in the box.

Most West players would make the attacking lead of their fourth best spade and there would be no chance for any deception at all because the defense would take three tricks to start, but West makes the apparently safe lead of a trump.

South wins in dummy and sees that he has been granted a reprieve. He leads dummy's king of diamonds and when East plays low, South discards a heart, not a spade.

West wins the diamond trick with the ace and has to find the right suit to lead. You can see that the spade shift is correct. But can West see it?

All he has to go on is the fact that South seems to be more afraid of hearts. So he leads a heart and South rumps off with the rest of the tricks to wind up making the unsound contract with an overtrick.

Perhaps West should have led a spade anyway on the theory that the heart would work only if his partner held both ace and king, while the spade lead would win if East held the ace. And perhaps the heart discard was silly. Discard a spade and South will only be down one against a spade shift. After the heart discard a spade shift would have beaten him two tricks.

All this is academic. The spade discard would have been sure death. The heart was a winner.

What do you do now?
A-Bid three diamonds. This contract should be safe and there is some slight chance that your partner can move on to game.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of rebidding two diamonds your partner has rebid two hearts. What do you do now?

300 Federal Convicts Go on Part Time

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prison gates swing open today for 300 federal convicts. The prisoners are to be back at nightfall. But meanwhile they are part of the nation's labor force.

By the end of the year, the U.S. Bureau of Prisons predicts, some 1,200 federal convicts will be part-time prisoners — confined at night but working by day, preparing for the moment they leave "the custody of the attorney general" for what they hope is the last time. Prisons Director Myrl E. Alexander says the response to the work release program — from both within and outside the prison system — has been dramatic and encouraging since President Johnson signed the Prisoner Rehabilitation Act last Sept. 10.

Through cooperation by industry, labor unions, prison officials and the inmates themselves, Alexander says, the program has been richly successful.

Today, 300 prisoners — including a handful of women — are taking part in the program. About 40 have been "graduated;" they have completed their sentences and are steadily employed at the jobs they assumed while still prisoners.

Only three prisoners have attempted to flee. All were found within hours, and the employer of one asked prison officials to return the man to work because of his ability. (He was turned down but was sent another prisoner.)

Prisoners are working at virtually every kind of skilled and semiskilled tasks. Some are dental technicians. Others are carpenters, electricians, mechanics, butchers and short-order cooks.

"The jobs are pretty much related to the training these persons have been getting in the institutions," L. J. Gengler, who is administering the work release program from Washington, said in an interview. "Some are even taking brush-up training courses outside the institutions to better prepare them for the work they'll be doing."

Gengler credits three factors for the success of the program: "From wardens down to probation officers and guards," he said, "The enthusiasm demonstrated by prison personnel has been largely responsible for making this thing go."

"We've had overwhelming support from the communities themselves. Unions, employers, citizens, mayor and newspapers, have been on our side. Most institutions even have citizens' advisory committees cooperating with the prison on work release. They know that in no case will we compromise the welfare or well-being of the citizens of a community."

"The work release program is closed to men convicted of violent crimes or those associated with organized crime rings."

"The reaction of the inmates themselves has been the real key to our success," Gengler went on. "You can sense the satisfaction among these men, realizing someone cares. You can feel their relief when they go out among free people and are treated like just another worker."

"Who knows? I this may be the beginning of the end of the ex-con stigma. These guys have always said, 'If I could only get out and prove myself.' Well, now they can."

Testimony Resumes in Murder Case

By ARTHUR EVERETT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Four years ago Candace Mossler, with costly frocks and a $5,000-a-month household allowance, was the pampered wife of multimillionaire Jacques Mossler.

Lois Constance Mulvey was then what she is today — a married woman married to a professional thief and trying to raise three children.

Monday, in a courtroom, Candace Mossler and Lois Mulvey came face to face for the first time.

If there was any similarity between them, it was that both are without their husbands — Mrs. Mossler's died a violent death, and Mrs. Mulvey's is back behind prison bars.

The attractive Mrs. Mossler, still expensively groomed, is on trial with her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, in the June 30, 1964, slaying of her husband. The state says aunt and nephew designed the murder in furtherance of an illicit love affair.

The trial resumes today with further defense testimony.

The state rested Monday after three weeks' testimony, including that of Billy Frank Mulvey, 35.

Mrs. Mulvey, 37, her husband a Texas State Penitentiary convict was the first witness called in defense of Candace Mossler. A short witness with no makeup and wearing low-heel black shoes, she was asked whether she and her husband were together in 1962, while he was between prison stretches.

"Yes, we were living together during the entire year," she replied. "He just did roofing work. He didn't work all the time, not steady work, just part time."

Her husband, Billy Frank, had testified in colorful prison jargon, that in 1962 Mrs. Mossler gave him a $7,000 down payment to kill her husband, in a deal that never went through. Expensively, Mulvey explained, that he spent the money buying clothes — "a whole bunch of clothes for my old lady and me."

"He bought some clothes for us," Mrs. Mulvey testified. "About $60 maybe, and that's what he spent. He bought the children some blue jeans and T-shirts. He bought me two pair of slacks, a pair of shoes and a purse."

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

Predictions of marginal weather — high winds and too many clouds — remained the main concern today as the countdown progressed toward Wednesday morning's scheduled flight of the first Saturn 1B rocket and Apollo moonship.

Weather permitting, the 225-foot-tall Saturn 1B with enough fuel on board to give it one-twentieth of the explosive capacity of the A-bomb that leveled Hiroshima, is due to rumble skyward at 7:45 a.m. EST on a 39-minute jaunt to a target area in the Atlantic Ocean 5,300 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy.

Riding on its nose will be an unmanned version of the cone-shaped Apollo spaceship which will carry three Americans to the moon. This will be the maiden flight for both the 650-ton Saturn 1B — the most powerful rocket ever built by the United States — and the Apollo moonship.

Hundreds of industrial executives, representing numerous companies which pooled their top talent to piece together the space-age marvel, plan to be on hand to witness the blast-off. The launch will be carried on the three major television networks.

The Saturn 1B's 1.6-million-pound-thrust first stage and second stage are designed to lift 37,000 pounds into earth orbit. That is 10,000 pounds more than the Soviet Proton 1, he heaviest payload ever launched.

During this first mission, however, the Saturn 1B will only lob the Apollo spacecraft 310 miles high and 5,300 miles down the Eastern Test Range.

On the downhill ride, two bursts of a jet engine will ram the spacecraft back toward the earth at nearly 10,000 miles an hour to test the Apollo's ability to withstand searing re-entry temperatures of nearly 5,000 degrees. Such heat is similar to that which astronauts must pass through on a return trip from the moon.

Project officials will attempt to recover the spacecraft after it parachutes to a landing in the South Atlantic.

The launch will be the first of three unmanned tests for the Saturn 1B before three Apollo astronauts go for a spin of 8 to 14 days around the earth late this year or early 1967 to work out techniques needed on the moon flight.

ing settlement of a suit filed by Otto Smith and other Republicans asking for a court order to make Whorton let them copy the record.

The set of records that was in Whorton's custody was stolen in January 1965. Duplicates of some of these stolen records were supposed to be in the ballots box and supposedly were included in the material which was burned.

The majority opinion said that the fact that Faubus and Johnson were never served with copies of the order prohibiting destruction of the records removed them from the danger of contempt.

"Johnson and Faubus could have felt it was not only their right but their duty to destroy the ballot boxes," Justice Paul Ward wrote in the majority opinion.

"The issue can briefly be stated in this way: Did the respondents knowingly destroy anything which this court ordered them not to destroy?" Ward wrote.

"The answer is obvious and also brief. They did not," he wrote.

Counterpart to WACS of World War II

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember the days when the WACS, those women soldiers, numbered in the tens of thousands during World War II?

And the WAFCs and the WAVES? If you're slow to recall the exact names, they are: Women's Army Corps (WACS), Women's Air Force (WAFCs) and — hardest of all — Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service WAVES.

South Viet Nam has a relatively new counterpart, WAFCs, Women's Armed Forces Corps. Their strength is rising, and there's even a backlog of applicants.

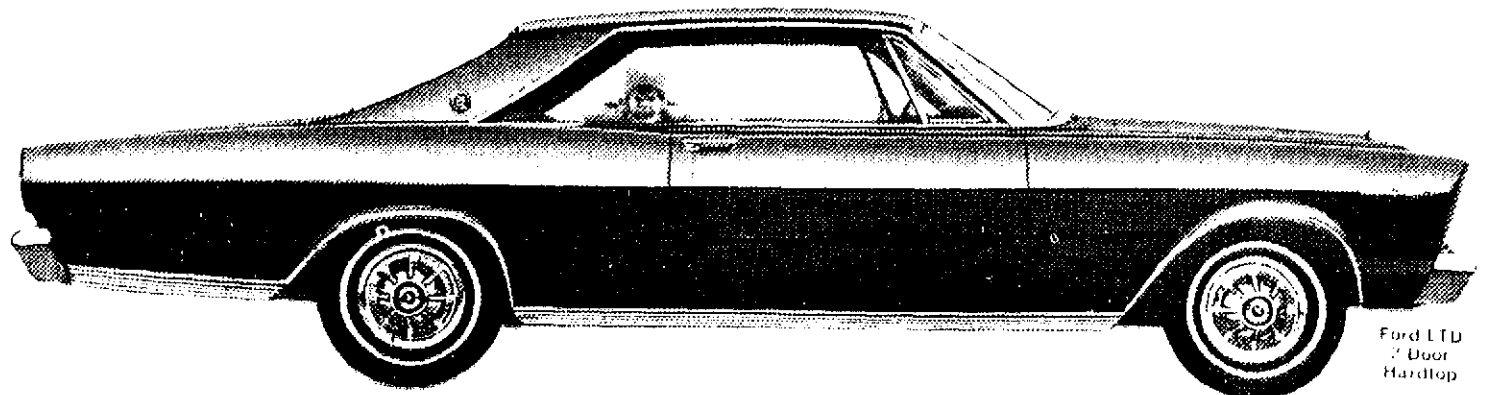

"Their main incentive," says WAFC training program in South Viet Nam last year, "is patriotism. They are quite articulate in stating their part in the Viet Nam struggle."

M. Sgt. Betty Adams told newsmen about the WAFCs Monday at a Pentagon news Conference. Basically the South Vietnamese corps' mission is like that of the U.S. women's services: pulling together the country's volunteer woman power trained in noncombat occupational skills.

Sgt. Adams, 33, of Woodside, Long Island, N.Y., and Maj. Kathleen L. Wilkes of Cobbtown, Ga., went to Saigon in January 1965 to act as advisers to the new WAFC.

A Cheating Dog Inflation Bird Comes Home

The National Field Trials are under way this week at Grand Junction, Tenn., and I am reminded that while the best dog may win he isn't always the most honest dog.

I got this story from B. W. Edwards Sunday night just as he was preparing to leave for the Tennessee conclave Monday morning. He said some dogs will cheat just as men do, and the judges don't always catch them.

A certain dog won the national championship at Grand Junction, but only because of a fast maneuver which would have disqualified him had he been caught at it. At a spot in the field trials when the judges were far away one of the contenders painted a bird before unofficial witnesses, but the champion-to-be, instead of honoring the point, stepped in front of the frozen dog and claimed the honor for himself.

It gained the rascal a scoring point, when he would have been thrown out of the meet had he been detected by an official — and, so the story goes, this questionable point was the margin by which he won the title!

Dirty pool, of course — but it only proves that the dog is known as man's best friend mainly because on occasion he's very much like his master.

Word from the building trades is that union labor is angry over the government's "guidelines" and plans to ask wage increases well above the stated limits.

It's unwise, but you can scarcely blame the crafts for putting paper dollars ahead of true purchasing power. That's exactly what our spendthrift, deficit-ridden government is doing — always spending, but never paying up.

Labor will probably give our pious politicians a hard time — but they who turned the chickens loose shouldn't be surprised that they've come home to roost.

Master Education Plan Suggested

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Forrest Rozzell says a statewide commission "adequately financed and staffed with professionally competent" persons should draw up a master plan for education in Arkansas.

Rozzell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, said the plan should cover pre-school to graduate school levels.

He made his suggestion in a speech here Saturday to the Little Rock Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Grants to State Colleges

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Distribution of $66,266 to its member schools was announced today by the Arkansas Foundation of Associated Colleges.

Sixty per cent of the funds received by the foundation are divided equally between colleges and 40 per cent on the basis of undergraduate student enrollment, unless otherwise designated by the donor.

The colleges and the amounts received, the foundation said, were:

Arkansas College $7,083, College of the Ozarks $7,575, Harding College $11,992, Hendrix College $9,590, John Brown University $8,500, Ouachita Baptist University $13,372 and Southern Baptist College $8,152.

Last Day on Investigation

DALLAS, Te. (AP) — Police chief Jesse Curry, the man who led the investigation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963, is on his last day on the job today.

Curry goes on terminal leave until March 10, when his resignation becomes effective. Assistant Chief Charles Batchelor will be acting chief until March 1, when he will assume the office.

The chief told City Manager John Crull that the continued pressures and tensions of the office have affected his blood pressure.

Curry and Dallas' 1,100-man police force received credit for the swift capture of Lee Harvey Oswald in the assassination on Nov. 22, 1963. Then, when Jack Ruby killed Oswald during a routine jail transfer two days later, a storm of criticism raged about the department.

Snow Sweeps Across Broad U.S. Sections

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow fell in parts of Texas and across the western Plains today and cold weather hit broad areas from Montana into New England.

In Texas, light snow this morning fell as far south as Del Rio on the Mexican border and at Junction an waco in the central part of the state. Up to six inches fell at Memphis, 90 miles southeast of Amarillo, and at Henrietta, Monday.

The bitter cold of the past several days in the northern Midwest moderated a little but temperatures again were below zero in eight states — Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Nebraska. Subzero marks also were reported in parts of New York State, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

Unseasonable cold chilled parts of Texas, with temperatures in the teens in some northern areas. The mercury dropped to 13 at Amarillo.

Heavy snow swept sections in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas Monday, with seven inches reported at Anadarko, southwest of Oklahoma City, and six inches at Mangum. Five inches covered the ground at Fayetteville, in northwestern Arkansas, and one to four inches in nearby areas.

The mercury climbed to 4 above zero at International Falls, Minn., Monday, the highest mark in nine days. Monday's low was 31 below and compared to this morning's — 11.

Man Shoots 5 Negro Pickets

By ROSS M. HAGEN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A white man shot five Negro pickets in a Birmingham supermarket parking lot Monday night after they refused to move out of his way, police said.

Police said two of the Negroes were shot in the stomach and that the others were less seriously hurt. All required hospital treatment.

Police Capt. J. M. McDowell said Emory W. McGowan, 23, of Birmingham, turned himself in at the police department minutes after the shooting.

McDowell said McGowan would be charged with assault with intent to murder.

Authorities quoted McGowan as saying the Negroes were blocking his car and refused to move when he asked them to.

The officers said McGowan told them that when the Negroes would not move, he opened his car door and opened fire with a .25-caliber pistol.

The man drove quickly out of the parking lot, accompanied by a woman, according to police. She was questioned and released, McDowell said.

Fred L. Shuttlesworth of Cincinnati, secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said he was leading a nighttime protest march about a block away from the store, Liberty supermarket. "I heard a bunch of noise that sounded like firecrackers," he said.

"Then we saw some people on the ground. One man was trying to crawl. He had been shot in the back."

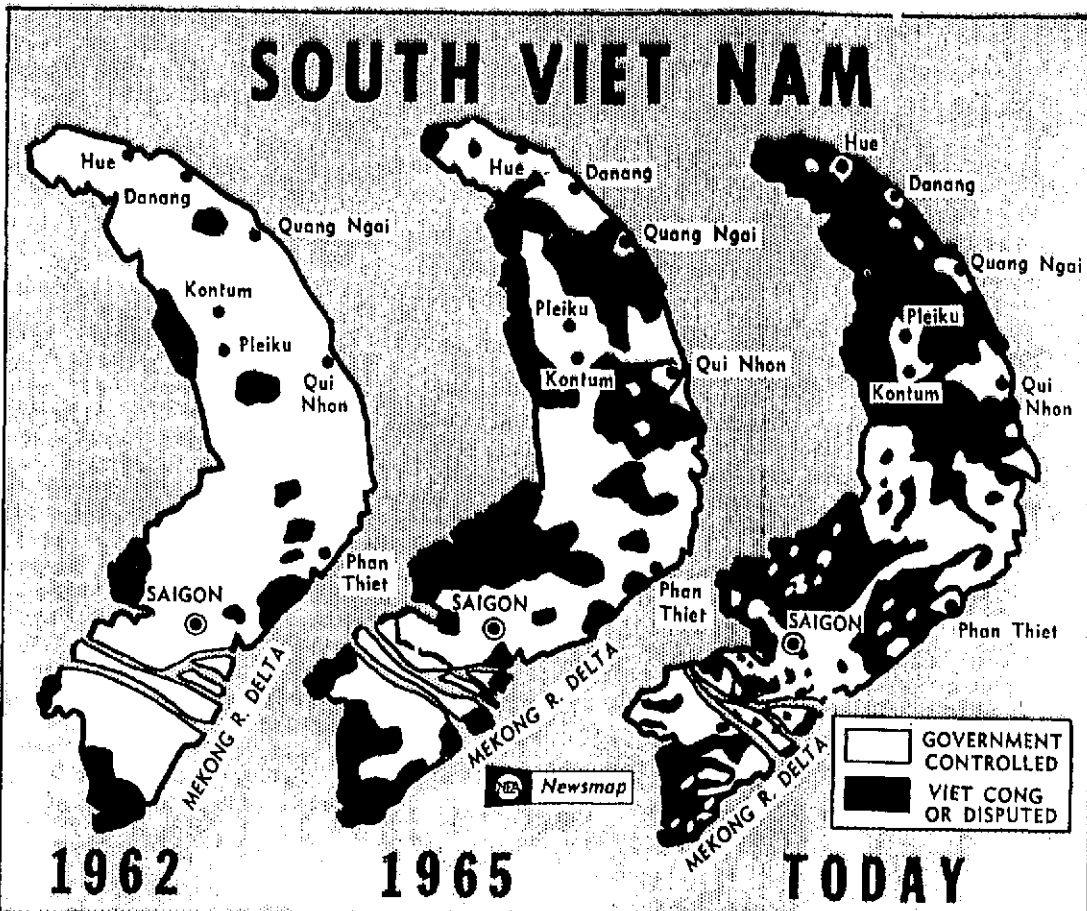

"Someone who saw who did the shooting got his license number."

Treated at University Hospital were Douglas Murray, 15, shot in the stomach; Willie Andrews, 32, shot in the back and stomach; William James Maxwell, 32; Albert Tate, 56, and Simon Armstrong, 70.

Shuttlesworth said members of his organization have been picketing the store in protest of alleged employment discrimination.

"Negroes make up 90 percent of this store's business and we feel that we should be represented by this percentage in the employment," Shuttlesworth said.

The firm filed a $2 million libel suit against the SCLC Monday alleging libel for making "false accusations" that the firm discriminated against Negroes.

Although territory is of less importance than control of strong military centers, the Viet Cong tide has been rising steadily in South Viet Nam during the past four years. Newsmap compares areas controlled by the Saigon government with unsafe areas last year and at the start of 1966. Much of the land in disputed areas is dense jungle. Saigon is in firm control of all the important population centers.

National Music Week Essay Contest

The 1966 National Music Week Essay Contest, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs and supported by a grant from Broadcast Music, Inc., will be held for students in grades 9-12. Entrants will write 500 words or less on "The Importance of Music to Me." Entries should be sent to NFMC Headquarters, postmarked not later than midnight, March 15, 1966. Entry forms are available at NFMC Headquarters, Suite 1215 600 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60605.

Essay contest winners will be announced during National Music Week, May 1-8. Fourteen winners will be chosen, one for each NFMC district; and each winner will receive a cash award of $25 and a record album. An Award of Merit will go to each winner's school. Students need not be members of the NFMC and they may submit more than one entry.

Miss Ann A. Ahern, President of the Arkansas Federation of Music Clubs, and Mrs. Talbot Feild, Jr., Arkansas Chairman of National Music Week, urge all students to enter. For further information call Mrs. Feild at PR 7-2109.

Extension Specialist Coming Here

Are your dollars getting what your family really wants and needs? And why is it so important to keep records? These and other related questions will be answered by Crystal Tenborg, Extension Home Management Specialist, on Wednesday, February 23 at 1:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce Office. Her visit to Hope will be postponed from February 1.

Mrs. Tenborg will discuss "Why and How to Keep Accounts" and How to Analyze the Accounts after They Are Completed." All interested homemakers are invited, and Dolores McBride, home demonstration agent, says that each person will receive a Home Account Record Book to record income and expenses.

There will be no charge for the training or the book.

Presbyterians Hear Catholic Nun

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Sister Ann Patrick Ware preached Sunday what is believed to be the first sermon by a Roman Catholic nun from an Episcopal pulpit.

The professor of theology at suburban Webster College spoke to an overflow crowd which included many Roman Catholics, some of them nuns, at St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

Her sermon was part of a program at the church that stresses ecumenism, and a more active role for women in church affairs.

Wanted Man Found at Lewisville

LEWISVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A Houston, Tex., man found unconscious in his car here Monday is wanted by Houston police on a murder charge, officers said.

Sheriff Wade Tatom said William R. Drachenberg, about 27, was found slumped over on the front seat of his car, which was parked in a cemetery. He said a hose had been connected from the exhaust pipe to the interior of the car and the engine was running.

Drachenberg was taken to a hospital, Tatom said, where he remained unconscious Monday night.

The sheriff said Houston police had notified his department in connection with the fatal shooting of Lee R. Jovicsin of Houston.

Jovicsin was shot Sunday in an apartment house. He died Monday.

Drachenberg's former wife, Mrs. Peggy Brock, was a resident of Lewisville. Tatom said.

Paper Mill at Camden to Expand

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — A $12 million construction program to increase production of industrial paper at the Camden mills of International Paper Co. was announced Monday by C. R. Haynes, mill manager.

Haynes said the program will include modernization of paper machines, a finishing room and a pulp mill.

The program will begin in May, Haynes said, and will utilize some 150 construction workers when the program reaches its peak in the fall of this year.

All for Cause of Friendship

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LONDON (AP) — If you'd care to take a chance on Ann Blackburn, it's all for the cause of Anglo-American friendship.

Mrs. Blackburn, a 31-year-old secretary with dimples and pretty legs, will be raffled off at the George Washington Ball Feb. 22.

She will donate her secretarial services free for one month to the winner of the raffle. She says her husband won't mind.

The English-Speaking Union, which is organizing the shindig, hasn't divulged the price of the raffle tickets. Proceeds from the ball go to a fund which provides traveling grants and scholarships to promote United States-British relations.

Fatally Burned

STEPHENS, Ark. (AP) — Mrs. Lula Anderson, 78, of Stephens was fatally burned Monday when fire, apparently started by a heater, damaged her home here, said Sheriff Grover Lane.

Says Bennett Is Playing Petty Politics

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Republican Lynn Lowe charged Monday night that Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett used delaying tactics to prevent a special election in the 4th Congressional district and termed them "petty politics."

Lowe, a candidate for the House seat vacated by Rep. Oren Harris Feb. 2, said Texas Gov. John Connally has already set a March date for an election to succeed the late Rep. Albert Thomas who died last week.

"For the 18th day, the 4th District of Arkansas has been represented in the U.S. Congress by an empty seat while an important debate is being waged on the Viet Nam war," he said.

Seeking to Head Young Democrats

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP) — Crossett attorney Richard Earl Griffin said Monday he is considering running for president of the Arkansas Young Democrats Club.

Griffin said it first must be determined whether he can qualify for the race because of a dispute over the certifications of individual clubs.

The Ashley County club membership application was one of some 25 referred by state President Sam Boyce of Newport to the club's fair practices committee after charging that counterfeit forms were used.

Griffin said he had been contacted by delegates from several YDC clubs in the state.

Collision at P. B. Is Fatal

CLANTON, Ala. (AP) — Mrs. J. R. Pierce of Pine Bluff, Ark., was killed in a head-on collision of two cars near here Monday.

Two other persons, Mr. and Mrs. Wile Ericson of Bishop Hill, Ill., also died in the crash.

Coroner James Martin said Mrs. Pierce's husband was taken to a Birmingham hospital in critical condition. Pierce is president of the General Waterworks Corp. of Pine Bluff.

Train-Truck Wreck Fatal

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Ernest Davis, 44, of Kensett was killed Monday in the collision of a pickup truck and Missouri Pacific Freight train.

State Trooper Bill Westmoreland said Davis drove in front of the southbound train at a crossing on a county road about one mile north of Kensett.

Anita Davis was admitted to a Searcy hospital and was reported in fair condition today. A child was also in the Davis truck, but was not admitted to the hospital.

More U.S. Money for University

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grant of $66,666 to the University of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock for a new diagnostic and treatment center was approved by the Health, Education and Welfare Department Monday, said Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Record Gas Sales Made by Arkla

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. says a recent severe cold weather period resulted in a record delivery of gas to its customers.

Arkla said Saturday that from Jan. 26 through Feb. 1 customers demanded an average of 1.5 billion cubic feet of gas a day, approximately 100 million cubic feet a day higher than any previous week in the firm's history.

Arkla said about 1.7 billion cubic feet was delivered on Jan. 29, a one-day record.

Thousands of Fighting Men Hunt Viet Cong

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON South Viet Nam (AP) — Thousands of American fighting men hunted the Viet Cong on two fronts today after B32 superfortresses bombed only a few miles ahead of them to crumble Communist defenses.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division found 38 Viet Cong dead and evidence of considerably more Red casualties after moving into a Communist triangle 10 to 12 miles south of Bong Son in the coastal plains 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

At times the eight-engine Air Force bombers from Guam dropped their 500- and 750-pound bombs only two to three miles in front of the advancing cavalrymen. U.S. spokesmen said the air cavalry killed another 20 Viet Cong Monday raising the division's total. In the jungles west of Saigon, thousands of U.S. infantrymen began Operation Mastiff in an attempt to cripple Viet Cong forces operating on the capital's doorstep.

Like the air cavalrymen, the 1st Infantry Division combed the thick forests after the area had been softened up by B32s.

Although the six or seven war-hardened Viet Cong regiments in the area, perhaps 8,400 men, offered only token resistance, American officers said the operation could erupt into one of the major actions of the war.

Two guerrillas were reported killed as the infantrymen of the "Big Red One" poured into the area Monday by helicopter, armored car and truck.

Wilson Seeks Soviet Aid in Ending War

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain called on Soviet leaders today to help promote unconditional peace talks on Viet Nam before the war there spreads through Asia and possibly the world.

But Premier Alexei N. Kosygin brushed aside Wilson's appeal, demanding instead acceptance of North Viet Nam's terms for a peace parley. These have been rejected both by the Saigon and U.S. governments.

Kosygin insisted any settlement must fulfill the 1954 Geneva agreements.

Wilson and Kosygin spoke at a luncheon attended by most members of the Soviet Communist party's "collective leadership."

Where Wilson stressed points of British-Soviet accord on Viet Nam, Kosygin criticized the United States for bombing attacks on the North and its land against the Viet Cong in the South.

Wilson and Kosygin held their first talks.

A discussion of British-Soviet relations, with emphasis on Wilson's desire for greater Soviet purchases of British goods, was on the agenda for the opening session.

International mothers, particularly the differing Moscow and London views on the deepening crisis in Asia, were high on the work program.

As the exchanges began, Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist paper published a blast against what it said are Western plans to arm West Germany with nuclear weapons.

Arguments Continue on Wage Hikes

By NEIL GILBRIDE MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO drafts further argument today against a White House proposal to limit wage increases, while Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz tries to patch holes in the Johnson administration's alliance with organized labor.

Wirtz is staying an extra day to talk with officials of the big labor federation, who Monday rejected his pleas to heed President Johnson's wage guidelines.

"I think he got the message," said one member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council which held several hours of talks with Wirtz behind closed doors.

The federation's Economic Council today begins drafting a report which is expected to bolster opposition to any federal plan to restrict wage demands without also controlling increases in prices and profits.

The report, informed sources said, also will argue that the nation's strong economy can afford both the guns of its war needs in Viet Nam and the butter of Johnson's "Great Society" program.

The federation is expected to urge Johnson and Congress to impose excess profit taxes on corporations instead of trying to hold down the income of wage earners.

In another meeting, AFL-CIO maritime officials met to map plans for their threatened boycott of a hundred of foreign ships — including those of U.S. allies — that deal with North Viet Nam.

Although the encounter between Wirtz and the AFL-CIO hierarchy was described by both sides as amicable, Wirtz said the labor leaders forcefully expressed their views against White House guidelines that try to limit wage hikes to 3.2 per cent a year.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said the action of Johnson's economic advisors, in failing to boost the figure to 3.6 per cent in line with the big 1965 increase in the Gross National Product, "smacks of trickery."

Wirtz told the AFL-CIO leaders he was not enough of an economist to say whether labor contentions that the guidelines should also apply to booming industry profits was "a proper comparison."
